DECEASED -

CORONERS CASE REFERENCE NUMBER

NUMBER DESCRIPTION

REPORT BY

M.Chem.A. C.Chem M.R.S.C.

On 16 December 2014, Mr an Apollo driver, brought to the laboratory, specimens of blood and urine attributed to the deceased and submitted by a Coroners Officer.

These have been examined with the assistance of scientific support staff with the following results:-

LSN 14T/5251/00001 Blood - Fluoride

Ethyl Alcohol

= 436 mg per 100ml

LSN 14T/5251/00002 Blood - Unpreserved

No Analysis Required

LSN 147/5251/00003 Urine - Fluoride

Elfryl Alcohol

491 mg per 100ml

LSN 14T/5251/00004 Uring - Unpreserved

No Analysis Required

CONCLUSIONS

Analysis has shown the presence of a very substantial level of ethyl alcohol in the body of the deceased. Levels above 400 mg per 100 ml in the blood can be fatal due to respiratory depression, however tolerance may be developed during regular usage. Alternatively death may occur at lower blood concentrations as a result of inhalation of vomit during unconsciousness.

Dear

(decensed): HMC ref.

Thank you for furnishing me with a copy of the Birmingham City Laboratories' toxicological analysis report on this case.

You will read that this confirms my gross autopsy impression of a very substantial quantity of ethyl alcohol in the body of the decedent around the time of death, significantly above the threshold typically associated with fatalities.

I, therefore, now proffer the following medical cause of death:

- Īπ Acute ethanolic intoxication
- П Coronary artery atheroma. Chronic degenerative mitral valvar disease.

The mode of dying is likely profound cardio-respiratory/central nervous system depression consequent upon the direct toxic effects of imbibed alcohol, contributed to by pre-existing natural physical disease, to wit coronary artery atheroma and chronic degenerative mitral valvar disease. The annual incidence of sudden death in individuals suffering severe single vessel left anterior descending coronary artery stenosis is approximately 11%, attributed to spontaneous ventricular arrhythmias. Alcohol destabilises cardiac myocytes, thereby heightening any predisposition to cardiac dysrhythmia, potentiating this risk.

This concludes my examination here,

I anticipate that this is satisfactory for the purposes of your investigation.

Yours sincerely

MB,ChB, FRCPath Consultant Histopathologist.

l hope you are well.
A death occurred at the abore ported to the Coroner. O	ove premises on 10/12/14. This was (quite properly) treated as non suspicious and ASIS log 139 refers.
Jnderlying health issues (ha ed to the death. The Histop	athologist has proffered the cause of death as. '1a Acute ethanolic intoxication'. An he deceased's sister, limber was in fac	attended SHLPS yesterday reporting that she the murdered. OASIS log 2094 (4/2/15) refers.

She informed officers that she had recordings of the deceased's friends telling her that the landlord gives away illegal home made alcohol from behind the bar. She believes that this would account for the large level of 'ethanol' in her brothers blood.

She also believes the landlord has recorded over the CCTV and not kept it as he should. She also states that the landlord left him in the pub unconcious whilst he went out for food. The log also details the sisters belief that her brother wouldn'y have been able to jump over the counter (he had a bad knee) and that Jack Daniels (which the bar manager has stated that the deceased consumed a lot of very quickly) contains no ethanol.

Having obtained the relevant documents from the Coroners officer. I have been able to explain to Miss that the ethanol recorded in the toxicology finding relates to 'alcohol', that the reading was over 400mg (per 100ml of blood) and that the statement describes her brother reaching over the bar and not jumping.

I have accessed the Innkeeper site on the intranet and can find no condition of the licence which suggests anyone is obliged to retain any CCTV from the premises for a specified time. I have informed Miss of this.

The statement from the landlord does describe leaving the deceased on the floor of the pub but it also details the fact that he was still breathing at that point and that the deceased was then placed in the recovery position to avoid complications if he was sick.

I have researched closed logs and reported crimes for the pub over the last twelve months and there is nothing that obviously suggests that anyone else has come to harm by potentially drinking a home brewed product supplied at the pub. Log 2029 10/7/14 relates to a haemophiliac vomiting blood at the premises but there is nothing contained on the log which shows any direct connection.

Given all the circumstances there is no indication that further police investigation into the circumstances of the death is necessary.

However, the information regarding the alleged supply of a home brewed product may be something you wish to pursue.

I have attached documentation regarding the death. The home brew is only mentioned on the e-mails between and PC 7686 HUGHES who was given corroboration of the information supplied by the deceased's sister by a male named items, which I photographed. I later found by internet research that the items on the list referred to various flavoured spirits. Slivka being a clear coloured plum spirit.

On 20th February I re-visited the Gunmakers Arms in company of Trading Standards Officer Martin Williams. There were no unlabelled bottles in the main bar area. However, on entering the cellar, it was apparent that bottles similar to those found on my previous visit were located at the rear of the cellar. Again there were no labels and they were full of a clear liquid. Martin WILLIAMS conducted tests on the liquid to assess the alcohol by volume level, and found it was 50% abv. Trading Standards issued a further traders notice in relation to decanting alcohol, to which Mr HALABRIN stated he was unaware of this legislation.

On 27th March 2015 I attended the inquest at Coroners Court into the death of the male found at the Gunmakers Arms on 10th December 2014. During this, I was made aware of photographs that had been taken by Mr HALABRIN on the night of the death. The photographs showed the male lookind highly intoxicated. Images also showed shots of alcohol across the bar and a bottle of Jack Daniels Honey sat also on the bar top. Further images show the male unconscious in a chair inside the premises, then unconscious outside on the doorstep of the premises. The cause for concern being that the male was clearly highly intoxicated and unresponsive, but no medical assistance was called at this time. Further concern was highlighted when another image shows that Mr HALABRIN left the male unconscious and unresponsive in the pub, whilst locking the door and going for food, without seeking any form of medical assistance.

On 10th April 2015, I met with the Premises Licence Holder for the Gunmakers Arms, namely Mr Thomas O'BRIEN. I informed him of everything that had happened with regards to the death of the male in the premises and subsequent follow up visits. He stated that he had not been made aware of the death until a couple of months after the incident and that he was shocked that Mr HALABRIN hadn't told him of what had happened. He further added that he was unable to get into the premises as Mr HALABRIN had changed the locks.

From the above dealings I have had with the premises, the licence holder and the DPS, I feel that there is a significant lack of communication between all parties, and also a lack of responsibility for promoting public safety. This leads to serious concern for the management of such premises at this time, and significant changes need to be made in order to successfully promote the licensing objectives.
